

One Contestant In Balloon Race Forced To Land

Von Hoffman Landed Six Miles North of Fort Wayne, Indiana—In Air 19 Hours

5 PASSING OVER LAKE ERIE

Several Seen Passing Over Detroit—Big Navy Helium Bag Unaccounted For

By Associated Press
Milwaukee, Wis. — The balloon piloted by Captain John Berry of St. Louis came down at Monticello, Ill., this morning, tearing into a telegraph wire, according to a despatch to the Milwaukee Journal which had a reporter as a passenger in the balloon. The balloon suddenly started for the ground, according to the despatch and throwing over of every available bit of ballast and equipment failed to stop it.

Chicago—Reports on eight of the entries in the national balloon race Thursday had verified the course of the pilots who chose the southern flight when the ascension was made at Milwaukee Wednesday evening and after 20 hours flying only one report of a landing by any contestant had been received.

Balloon No. 11, piloted by Lieut. Bernard Von Hoffman with Ralph N. Venzell of the Aero Club of St. Louis landed six miles north of here shortly before noon Thursday.

Von Hoffman, of St. Louis, was one of the eight civilian entries in the National Balloon race which started at Milwaukee Wednesday afternoon. He started at 4:18 p. m. making his time in the air about 19 hours. The distance from Milwaukee to Fort Wayne by air is about 200 miles. Except for Roy Donaldson who was forced down before he crossed the outskirts of Milwaukee, von Hoffman is the first of the entrants reported as descending.

The four bags which ascended to 5,000 feet to begin the northward drift had not been sighted at noon Thursday.

Only one pilot had reported his progress to the Aero Club headquarters at Milwaukee, J. S. McKibben of St. Louis dropping a message that he passed Whiteside, Mo., at 9:10 a. m.

Five other bags crossed southern Michigan early Thursday, one being reported later near Bryan, Ohio, going northeast. Bryan is about 250 miles in an airplane from Milwaukee and southeast.

Two civilian entries, one army balloon and the navy helium bag which went northward are the ones unreported.

Telegrams have been received here from numerous towns and cities. From Detroit came the report that hundreds of people on their way to work early Thursday morning saw five of the big bags sailing over the city in the direction of Lake Erie.

The opposite courses taken by the balloons which shot high into the upper currents from those which skimmed the earth intensified interest in the national air event today.

The bags which caught the Northwest drift were expected to continue that course until they landed somewhere in the Canadian wilds, but the destinations of those which drifted southward added interest to the race.

CONCRETE FROM FOX VALLEY TO ILLINOIS

New Route to be Finished by End of Present Construction Season

Madison, Wis.—By the end of the present construction season, there will be a surfaced highway from Rockford, Ill., through Janesville and Madison to Green Bay and the Fox river valley. F. A. Cannon, executive secretary of the Good Roads association of Wisconsin said Thursday after report from the highway commission.

"There is a hard surfaced road practically all of concrete, from Green Bay to Fond du Lac," Mr. Cannon said. "The Dodge county board at a meeting last week ordered the construction of a concrete road on the earth section of the highway between Beaver Dam and Columbus."

"This means that there will be a surfaced road of concrete and gravel from Fond du Lac to Madison at the end of the year. There is already a gravel road from Madison to Janesville and concrete from Janesville south to Rockford. The result is a surface highway from Rockford, Ill., through Madison to Green Bay, offering a new artery of travel from Illinois to the Fox river valley in addition to one running north from Chicago."

DAUGHERTY IS SUPPORTED BY PRES. HARDING

Executive Attitude on Morse Case is Revealed After Discussion on Mayflower

CARAWAY REVIVES CASE

Attorney General Defended Morse When He Was in Private Legal Practice

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1922, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington — Attorney General Daugherty will not resign. President Harding has not asked him to do so and he never will.

This is the inflexible attitude of the administration as revealed after the president and his advisers returned from a cruise on the Mayflower where the impression caused by the attacks in the senate against the attorney general was the subject of informal discussion.

Practically everybody in the administration group admits that Daugherty handled his own defense poorly and that the mix-up between him and Senator Watson of Indiana was most unfortunate. But on the basis of what has happened to date the administration feels no less confident in Mr. Daugherty nor does it feel that when all the facts and influences attempting to injure the attorney general are exposed in the forthcoming war prosecutions, the public will have an unfavorable impression of the man at the head of the department of justice.

HARDING INDEBTED

There's something more than personal friendship and loyalty in Mr. Harding's attitude toward his life-time associate and political mentor. It's true that to Harry Daugherty more than anyone else Mr. Harding owes his nomination at Chicago in 1920, which was equivalent to an election. It's true that Mr. Harding is under obligation to Mr. Daugherty but it is also a fact that Mr. Harding knew in the fall of 1920 everything about the part Harry Daugherty played in obtaining a pardon for Morse under the Taft administration and that he did not consider it a bar to the appointment of Mr. Daugherty.

If Harry Daugherty had come out immediately after his connection with the Morse case was mentioned in senate debate by Mr. Caraway of Arkansas and said: "Yes I was an attorney for Morse and helped get him a pardon—I was a private lawyer then and had a right to defend my client," no one would have thought any more about the incident. But in a telephone conversation between Harry Daugherty and Senator Watson of Indiana a misunderstanding occurred.

DIGS UP OLD CASE

Senator Watson had communicated by telephone the fact that Senator Caraway had revived the Morse case. Mr. Daugherty, who had been hearing about the Morse case for eleven years, was not perturbed by it.

When Mr. Watson of Indiana told him it was up again the attorney general told him not to worry as he hadn't received a cent from Morse. Mr. Daugherty imagined the conversation related to whether he had received any money and he authorized Mr. Watson to deny it. During the course of the debate Senator Watson went a step farther and indicated that the attorney general had denied his connection with the case altogether.

In support of the contention that the attorney general couldn't have claimed any such thing, administration supporters insist that Dr. Daugherty would never deny what had been common knowledge and what had been printed in the newspapers at the time of his connection with the Morse pardon.

The paradox of the situation which is as much a mystery to the administration as people outside of it is why the attorney general should be attacked for helping to free Morse a decade ago when the department of justice is doing everything in its power to put Morse back in jail.

SMALL HAD FEARS OF OFFICE PROBE. SUCCESSOR SAYS

Illinois Governor Had $10,000,000 of State Money When Miller Took Office

By Associated Press
Waukegan, Ill. — Edward E. Miller, state treasurer Thursday took the stand for the state in the trial of Gov. Len Small. He testified that Gov. Small advised him to obtain personal bonds instead of giving a surety bond. The governor, Mr. Miller said, told him a surety bond was unnecessary and "might lead to investigation" of the office by the surety company.

Identifying a receipt presented to him by his predecessor, Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, for his signature when he took over the office, Mr. Miller said he declined to sign it on the day he took office because he had been unable to check two items. One was $15,000 deposited in a bank then in the hands of a receiver and the other was $10,000,000 in securities marked as held in Chicago for safe keeping.

"I called his attention to the fact that the list was $100,000 short," Mr. Miller testified. "The governor turned to Mr. Curtis and as I recall it said something about the other securities being too bulky to bring down. 'Verne' he said, 'you'll have to give him something else in place of them.' After some conversation the governor loaned Mr. Curtis $100,000 in notes and mortgages and he gave them to me."

Accept My Plan Or None, Ford's Reply

By Associated Press
Washington — Henry Ford's reply to the counter proposal drafted by the house military committee for development of the government projects at Muscle Shoals, Ala., was presented Thursday to the committee by J. W. Worthington, a representative of Mr. Ford immediately upon arrival here from Detroit where he conferred with the manufacturer.

Mr. Ford's answer made in the form of a letter to Chairman Kahn, definitely rejected the provision in the committee plan which eliminated the steam plant at Gorgas, Ala., from the properties to be disposed of by the government with the Muscle Shoals property.

"I cannot consent to eliminate these Gorgas plants," the letter said, "because it is necessary to the economical operation of the Muscle Shoals properties. If my revised offer for Gorgas is refused then I must understand that the acceptance of my offer for Muscle Shoals as a whole and not in part, is refused."

Mr. Ford presented a virtual ultimatum on the question, agreeing to other modifications of his offer as made by the committee in its model offer but said he wanted the committee to "consider this proposal (the one presented by him Thursday) as final and that no further changes should be expected."

SENATOR WATSON REPEATS CHARGE AGAINST HOOVER

Says Hoover Handled Larger Sums Than Ever Handed in World—Asks for Audit

By Associated Press
Washington — Senator Watson, Democrat, Georgia, Thursday in the senate reiterated his charge that Herbert Hoover had failed to make detailed itemized reports of expenditures for Russian, Belgian and other relief enterprises, directed by him.

Published reports of the relief commission presented Wednesday by Senator Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin, with a letter from Secretary Hoover, were declared by the Georgia senator to be out rather than refute his charge.

Various items in these reports were read by the senator in an effort to show that the reports "lumped" expenditures without details as to salaries or other incidents and without accompanying vouchers.

The reports, Senator Watson said, contained "astounding information that Mr. Hoover had had charge of vast sums than were ever handled by any body in the world."

"No king or emperor, no King Solomon or American millionaire ever handled the vast sums handled by Mr. Hoover," said Senator Watson, adding that the American people and the government were entitled to an itemized accounting.

State Leaders Of G.O.P. Meet In Conference

Drafting Of Platform Is First Task

More Than 900 Delegates, Including Many Women, Meet in Milwaukee to Nominate Candidates to Oppose LaFollette Faction.

By Associated Press
Milwaukee — The construction of a platform principle on which candidates selected by the Citizens' Republican State conference here Thursday will enter the September Wisconsin general primaries was the first work undertaken after organization was completed Thursday morning.

More than nine hundred delegates representing every county in the state were in their seats when the meeting was called to order. Practically half of this number were women who Chairman Bosshard said "are participating for the first time in Wisconsin since the enfranchisement in the deliberations of a great political party on a plane of equal influence and equal power with the men."

NAMES COMMITTEE

Chairman Bosshard after invocation by Rev. Herbert Noonan, president of Marquette university, named the committee on resolutions which will draw up the platform which the convention will act on formally, probably late Thursday afternoon or night.

Members of this committee are: Lyman G. Wheeler, chairman, Milwaukee; Mrs. Theodore Youmans, Waukesha; A. J. Glover, Fort Atkinson; W. R. Graves, Prairie du Chien; Mrs. William Stark Smith, Milwaukee; A. L. O'Brien, Oshkosh; John McConnell, LaCrosse; F. S. Ploetz, Columbia; Mrs. Y. D. Deuster, Sturgeon Bay; W. T. Doar, New Richmond; T. W. Anderson, Medford.

Appointment of a committee on permanent organization of the Citizens' Republican State conference followed, with the following named by the chairman:

Arthur Barry, chairman Milwaukee; Lawrence Whitte, Edgerton; Paul Burchard, Fort Atkinson; W. H. Doyle, Plattville; Walter Drew, Milwaukee; John C. Thompson, Oshkosh; E. M. Doll, Baraboo; King Weeman, Shawano; Mrs. V. A. Lundgren, Marinette; H. T. Langer, Eau Claire; and Mrs. B. R. Lewis, Rhinelander.

BATTLE OVER LIQUOR

Planks in the proposed platform already drawn by delegates and which will be submitted to the committee of resolutions for action, were drawn Thursday morning.

The one issue on which leaders anticipate a floor battle, that of prohibition, has been dealt with in a proposed plank by a declaration for law enforcement, with support of the constitution and all its amendments by all necessary laws.

Members who drew this plank say that it is a compromise between the demand of drys for a declaration against modification of the Volstead law and the demand of wets for a declaration in favor of return of beer and wine.

Support of the soldiers' bonus is pledged in another plank. Change of the Wisconsin primary law in such manner so to enforce party lines in voting is called for in a further proposal.

Other planks demand economy, lowering of taxes and praise the administration of President Harding. Radicalism is denounced in one plank.

The temporary officers of the Citizens' Republican state conference were elected as permanent officers by the conference.

Otto Bosshard, La Crosse, will head the new organization during the next two years with Senator George B. Skogmo as secretary.

The executive committee directing the organization are: Paul C. Burchard, Fort Atkinson; Walter Drew, Milwaukee; John Fitzgibbon, Milwaukee; Mrs. Victor A. Lundgren, Marinette, and Mrs. Lila J. Stout, Rice Lake.

Outagamie county is represented by 22 delegates at the state conference. These delegates were elected at a county convention held here May 10. While they are not instructed it is certain they will support Mark S. Catlin for attorney general.

DR. ROBERTS OF LUSK CASE WEDS IN NEW YORK

Balloting Will Begin In Evening

Morgan and Wilcox Regarded as Strongest Candidates to Head Ticket — Catlin and Baker Seek Attorney General Nomination.

Milwaukee—Balloting on state officers who will enter the Wisconsin general election primaries, was started by the Citizens' republican state conference when it convened Thursday afternoon. Nominations for governor were called for first, which will be followed by the nominations for lieutenant-governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, attorney general and United States senator.

Judge Charles F. Smith of Rhinelander placed the name of Attorney General William S. Morgan in nomination as a candidate for governor.

Milwaukee—An ovation was given by the delegates when the name of Attorney General Morgan was brought before the convention.

Milwaukee—Efforts of republican leaders to have former Senator Roy P. Wilcox withdraw from the contest for governor against Attorney General William J. Morgan, and enter the race for nomination as senator to oppose Robert M. LaFollette, were unsuccessful Thursday afternoon.

Wilcox, twice a candidate for governor, says his political ambition is to serve as chief executive of Wisconsin. His supporters are active.

Attorney General Morgan after a survey of the situation this afternoon is confident that he has six hundred votes on the initial ballot, one hundred more than the necessary majority. He is working to hold his forces in line and capture new delegations. The anti-saloon league says that his nomination is assured on the second ballot.

Politicians say that the nomination of George McKerrrow for the senate to oppose LaFollette is assured. C. A. Ganfield, president of Carroll college is working for the nomination.

Speaker Riley S. Young, says that his nomination for lieutenant governor is assured on the first ballot.

Henry Johnson, state treasurer for five terms, Wednesday night announced that he was seeking renomination and was not interested in the contest for governor. He had been mentioned as a formidable candidate for the head of the state ticket. Alexander Matheson, assemblyman from Rock county, told the delegation from this district Wednesday night that he would refuse to have his name brought before the convention for governor after he was informed that a move was underway to nominate him to divide the vote for other contestants.

In the contest for United States Senator at the head of the full ticket there was less activity among the candidates. In this connection George McKerrrow, president of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau federation is prominently mentioned. Leatham M. Smith, Sturgeon Bay, and W. A. Ganfield, president of Carroll college are actively in the race for the senate with a big following among delegates.

John P. Baker, assistant attorney general and Mark Catlin, assemblyman from Outagamie county remain the two leading contestants for the nomination as attorney general on the state ticket, with David Summerville, assemblyman from Rusk county, William Naylor, Tomah, and A. J. Cobban, Madison, as candidates for secretary of state. Speaker Riley S. Young, Senator W. H. Werden, Ashland, and Assemblyman, F. W. Ploetz are the candidates for lieutenant governor.

STOPS DARKENING OF DANCE HALLS

Chief Prim Orders All Parties to be Conducted Decently Hereafter

Several instances have been called to attention of the police recently where "moonlight" or spotlight dances have been permitted at social affairs. Chief George T. Prim therefore has ordered the tightening of restrictions on dances where conduct previously banned is being permitted.

Lights have been turned out completely except for a few shaded globes on the orchestra platform at several dances and were ordered turned on by officers. The persons in charge of the dance were warned not to repeat the offense.

"Every dance hall, no matter whether it is a semi-private affair or a public dance, must be kept well lighted," said Chief Prim. "Dimming of lights will not be tolerated and we certainly will not allow any group of dancers to turn the lights off completely as has been done here of late."

EVERY GRADUATE IN DISTRICT HAS PART IN PROGRAM

Children of Third District Schools Hold Commence- ment Exercises This Week

Commencement programs in the Third district schools are more democratic than commencement programs are wont to be for every one of the 70 graduates from the Third ward and Washington schools has a part. The greater portion of the two hour programs represent original work on the part of the graduates and the programs are conducted entirely by the class without the assistance of introductory speakers.

The program at the Washington school will begin promptly at 7:45 Thursday evening with "Welcome, Sweet Spring" by the Girls' chorus. The salutatory address will be given by Ora Bergman and the valedictory by Malinda Daelke. Lulu Doering will give a forecast of the program by quoting Walt Whitman. Norman Lipske will give "The Old Man at School" and Annette Post and Lulu Doering will sing a duet, "Raining Daffodils," accompanied by Betty Thompson. Other musical numbers on the program include "Daisies and Buttercups" by Ruth Glaser and Ruth Lutzow, "Questions" by the chorus and the class song by the class. The program will close with America.

PROJECT STUDIES

Project studies worked out by the students themselves as a demonstration of the work which they have been taught in school are the most interesting features of the program. Under the topic, "The Tide of Fortune" the story of bees and honey manufacture will be told by Nellie Rhode, Roy Desten and Norman Wichman.

Under the title, "A Wanderer from the West" the story of corn will be told by the children. Walter Klitzke will give the introduction; Annette Post, the historical setting; Russell Jones, the growth of the plant; Fenton Baumgartner, the plant as a laboratory; Wilbur Froelich, tassels and silk; Esther Lutzow, varieties of corn; Arthur Wenzlaff, corn, climate and soil; Ervin Bohnsack, nature's return; Doradine Yentz, as a trade resource; Ralph Radtke, its chemical composition; Caroline Fisher, its power of adaptation; Howard Smith and William Schmidt, its uses; Erwin Schmidt, its trail in the world; Lyle Baurnan, as a wonder of the western world. Many of these topics are illustrated with maps and charts.

A REAL COMPARISON

Lyle Baurnan in comparing the corn as a wonder with the pyramids marks off the space between Second and Spring, Bennett and Richmond sts. as the base of the largest pyramid and makes the apex twice as high as St. Mary's steeple. Then he marks off the distance between Second and College-ave., Bennett-st. and Lawrence Memorial chapel as the base of a cubical bin for the corn crop of 1921. The height of the bin would have to be four times the height of St. Mary's steeple.

A parliamentary drill by Max Krausch as chairman and Erma Kosliske as secretary will demonstrate the work in parliamentary procedure. Ruth Glaser will give "Notes on Some Pictures" in the field of art and Betty Thompson will give "New Work in Music." Willard Schmidt will give his survey of the amount of waste material which outsiders drop on the school grounds. Miss Esther Boshka will give some "Class Facts."

The project in the field of science will be taken up Willard Peterson and Gordon Schumann under the topic "Gas Flumes" while Herschel Gosnell will speak on "Robbing the Air." The

UNION PHARMACY

Great Refund Offer

To Appleton People Who Are Weak, Sickly, Nervous Or Run-Down

IMPORTANT NOTICE

By special arrangement, we can now extend to any person in Appleton who wants more strength, energy and endurance, the opportunity of using Nuxated Iron so that if you do not get all and even greater benefits than you expect, it will not cost you one cent, because we ourselves will promptly return your money.

You may wonder how we can afford to do this. The answer is that week after week a large number of Appleton people come into our store for Nuxated Iron; throughout the country over four million use it annually. Blood examinations by physicians all over the country show that an enormous number of people do not have enough iron in their blood. Without iron the blood becomes thin, pale and watery. In many cases this so seriously weakens the vital organs that people often believe they have heart or stomach trouble. They have pains and palpitation of the heart, sudden dizziness, faintness or spots before the eyes, when as a matter of fact the trouble is all due to lack of iron in the blood, and when iron is supplied, all of these symptoms disappear.

Genuine Nuxated Iron contains true organic iron like the iron in your blood. So many people are deficient in iron who would surely be benefited by this remarkable remedy that we recommend that you come right to Union Pharmacy and get a bottle of Nuxated Iron, use it for two weeks and note the improvement in your own case. You are the judge—if you do not get all and even greater benefits than you expect, just bring back the wrapper and we will promptly refund the full amount you paid.

FREIGHT RATES AND RAIL WAGES

It is unfortunate that the order of the Interstate Commerce commission reducing freight rates is immediately followed by an order of the railway labor board reducing the wages of employees. When the Interstate Commerce commission made its announcement of rate reductions last week, it called attention to the fact that they were based on previous wage adjustments. The first of the wage adjustments referred to was an increase in wages of all classes of employees granted July 20th, 1920, amounting to approximately $600,000,000 a year. The second, was the decision of July 1st, 1921, which cut about $400,000,000 from the wages of some 2,000,000 employees. It is estimated that the rate reductions now ordered will mean in the aggregate a saving of approximately $400,000,000 in freight bills, so it will be seen that the commission was apparently trying to equalize rates with prior wage adjustments.

On top of this, the labor board now announces an adjustment of the wages of some 400,000 maintenance-of-way employees effective July 1st, which it is estimated will amount to a reduction of close to $50,000,000. We do not profess to know anything about the level of wages in this department, although as a general proposition we think the great body of employees is not overpaid. In some departments we think they are underpaid. One thing is certain, that the wages of railroad employees ought to be liberal. They are engaged in a kind of quasi-public service which is of the highest importance, affecting as it does the safety, prosperity and well-being of millions of travelers, shippers and consumers.

The present reduction has too much the appearance of passing the cost of rate adjustments on to labor. It is quite clear that labor ought not to bear the entire sacrifice of lowered freight rates, granting even that it should bear any. The labor cost is not the only cost of railroading, and if it is necessary to reduce costs to meet rate reductions there are other fields in which economies can and should be effected. As a matter of fact, the reduction in freight rates ought not to curtail either the gross or net revenues of the railroads in the long run. On the contrary it should increase both because the railroads are suffering more from lack of volume than from any other element, and lower rates should stimulate volume.

It would have been highly gratifying to the nation if in the main the wage standards of the railroads could have been preserved. We think the public at large and many shippers are of the opinion that there is sufficient opportunity for retrenchment in railroad operation and enterprise in railroad management to bring this business up to a paying basis without putting the burden on labor.

We believe it is true that there are certain rules and regulations among the unions that are detrimental to the railroads and that burden them, and with them the public, with unnecessary and top-heavy expense, but this is a matter of condition rather than of wage scale. So far as the wage rate itself is concerned it is on the whole no higher than it should be, and in some instances it is lower than it should be. Where men are overpaid, or where wasteful expense is saddled onto the companies, it is due to causes other than the rate of pay.

We believe if the truth were known that wages have already been reduced from the war level in a larger percentage than freight rates have been reduced, whereas it should be the reverse, because of the simple fact that cost readjustment should embrace a much wider field than labor alone. We cannot therefore blame the rail employees for objecting to the present cut, although it affects only a relatively small number of men. On the surface it looks like putting the burden of lowered transportation charges entirely on labor. If working conditions were equitably arranged, we do not think there would be any justification for a reduction in the scale. The railroads of the United States ought to make money and pay what the country at large would regard as high wages. The men are entitled to high wages, and if the railroad business were more economically and efficiently conducted, high wages could be paid and the roads profitably operated.

CROSS THE CROSSING CAUTIOUSLY

You will see this sign in the next four months, if you haven't seen it already. "Cross the Crossing Cautiously." It will be displayed all over the United States from June 1 to September 30. The illustration which emphasizes the warning shows an automobile, loaded with passengers, trying to beat a locomotive over the locomotive's right-of-way.

As fast as money is available much travelled crossings, especially over city streets, will be removed from grade, as they should be. Extraordinary safety precautions will become necessary at important rural crossings. But it will take a lot of money and time to install all the safety devices that may be desirable.

Meanwhile, both the public and the railroads will have to be cautious. In fact, even when all safety devices and arrangements are in use, it will still be necessary to depend to some extent on brains.

The American Railway association is directing the "Cross the Crossing Cautiously" campaign. The propaganda no doubt will save many lives during the outing season.

EMPLOYEES WITH CRIMINAL RECORDS

It is well that a doctor is at the head of the postoffice department at the present moment, when ten per cent of the employees of the registry division of the New York City office had to be amputated out of the service. Acting Postmaster General Bartles reports that forty-nine of the 460 employees of the division had criminal records, confessing that they obtained employment with the object of robbing the mails.

There must be something wrong in the employment system when forty-nine men having criminal records can procure work in a great postoffice. Of course, forty-nine is but a small number of the total of 15,000 persons connected with the New York City office, but it seems incredible that so many with criminal records could make their way into the government service, and especially into registry division, in which integrity should be at a premium.

Star Sleeping Car

Having heard the call of the man who wants to make himself at home while traveling, the Pullman company has produced the star sleeping car. The home man wants to take off his coat and waistcoat, his cravat, his collar, shoes—maybe even his shirt—and trot around getting ready for bed as though he were in his own family circle. Always in the past, however, there has been a bunch of straitlaced women sitting about, looking with coldly disapproving eyes at any masculine undertaking to prepare to retire on the night train. The star Pullman sleeper just fills the bill. No women are allowed, of course. Not only can the male berth holders kick their shoes off without getting behind a curtain to do it, but they have the freedom of the car for saying what they think, as forcibly as they think it.

The head of the family who can chuck half his raiment, ease his suspenders off his shoulders, feel the glorious freedom of his pet corn from the pressure of imprisoning shoes, call to the porter at the other end of the car to come hurrying and be dutifully quick about it, sit around in his bed without need of ducking from one curtain to another while going from the wash-room to his berth in the middle of the coach will always swear by the star sleeper. This is service, indeed. Talk about corporations being heartless. No man who likes to undress right after dinner and read the papers and half a novel and play a few games and smoke a pipe and figure up the day's profits and losses and eat a quarter of a pie before going to bed can be made to believe anything bad of a concern which provides a state dining car for affording all the comforts of home to the men traveling by rail—ROCK ISLAND ARGUS.

Enter Madame Mosquito

The mosquito—it is the fatal that bites—establishes a dead line on summer life and says where people may stay and where they may not go. Such dictation proceeding from a ruler would provoke a revolution. The mosquito gets by with it.

She was cleaned out of Panama. She had to be if the United States was to have a canal there. Success was had in the worst possible place, but American communities, although hopefully experimenting here and there, still have not found a remedy. Indians find they can get relief by encouraging insect eating birds, by keeping gold fish in pools, and by drainage, but an effective war on the summer tyrant will have to be conducted in wide areas under skilled management.

Some day the realization that humans have more rights in the enjoyment of summer than they are yet able to maintain may produce state or federal action. Now for a XX amendment.—CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

CHALK TALK ON URIC ACID

What can be done, ask many correspondents, to remove or prevent chalk accumulations around the joints? "The joints of the fingers are growing larger—I can now get my wedding ring only on my little finger." "Don't say it is old age. When young folks get sick something is done for them, but when old folks suffer people say it is old age and can't be helped." "I am 72, but very active and I hate to think I must be disabled by this insidious rheumatism or rheumatoid arthritis, or as one horrid doctor called it, incipient arthritis deformans. It is just jumps on my finger joints that get sore now and then."

That which these correspondents describe is not chalk deposit or uric acid accumulation but usually an actual thickening of the structures of the joint from a low grade or mild chronic inflammation.

As everybody knows I have great awe of age, being especially fearful of old women, old maids and old geezers. But I believe I should require a course of twilight sleep to give me enough duct courage to insinuate that a person of seventy-two is suffering from old age. That is rather raw on the sufferer, I think. However, the old women within and without the profession are still fond of attributing all human ills of which they are ignorant to childhood, youth, middle age or old age. It saves their thinking.

One of the correspondents opines that the drinking water in his part of the country is a factor of his trouble, for the water is very hard. Another thinks it strange that she should have these rheumatic nodes on her finger joints and maybe an arthritis future before her, when she has for years drunk only pure artesian water. Still another asks whether distilled water isn't better for one so afflicted.

The hardness of the water or the softness of the water or the potability or purity of the water has no relation to the various joint diseases, although it may be true that one who habitually drinks plenty of water is less likely to suffer with such diseases than is one who drinks very little water. About the silliest extravagance I have encountered in studying the household sports of the country is the purchasing of drinking water in bottles when tap water of unquestioned potability is right at hand at no expense at all.

The prevention of actual chalky concretions, monodactylar urate, or derivative of uric acid about the joints and the prevention of the other types of joint disease described by the correspondents quoted, is a comparatively simple matter as compared with the cure. As I have pointed out in preceding talks, the deposit of the uric acid product about the joints is not the cause but just an incident or an effect of the disease; the increase in the proportion of uric acid in the blood, and the disease of a person who has chronic lead poisoning, leukemia, Bright's disease, gout, or other disease is not the cause, but just a secondary feature of the disease. If there is one preventive of chronic joint disease aside from the eradication of septic foci, it is increased metabolism, better oxygenation, of which more in subsequent issues. QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Kindly express your opinion as to the use of spirits of camphor or camphorated sweet oil for reducing the bust. (Mrs. M. E. D.)

Answer—No external application, medicinal, food, or appliance, or garment or apparatus, will reduce or enlarge the breasts. The camphor supposition is but an ancient fancy, with as much foundation as there would be for the practice of feeding a mother timothy hay to enable her to nurse her baby.

Bunion
Please tell me what you think of having bunions operated on by a surgeon when all the usual treatments have failed. Would one's call be noticeably changed? Had completed plans to have the operation performed, but today was discouraged by a shoe salesman who is a foot specialist. He said:— (D. F.)

Answer—Well, why not consult a milliner and an optician before you finally make up your mind about it? As a rule nothing else than operation will cure bunion. Your call is likely to be a great deal better when the bunion is cured than it is now.

Vinegar Habit
Please tell me whether the drinking of one-fourth cup of vinegar daily will have any effect on the red blood corpuscles. (D. S.)

Answer—It shrivels and destroys red corpuscles.

One Legislative Day
By the simple expedient of taking a recess, instead of an adjournment, at the close of a day's sitting, a legislative day may be continued into the next calendar one, and prolonged indefinitely. At the present time the United States Senate is sitting as of the legislative day Thursday, April 20.

The object is to keep the tariff bill in a parliamentary position where it has the right of way without being held up at every sitting until the daily order of business is completed. At the rate the debate is proceeding with the tariff, Thursday, April 20, promises to be one of the longest days since Joshua commanded the sun to stand still upon Gibeon.—PROVIDENCE JOURNAL.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

STEEL INDUSTRY SHOULD ACT ABOUT SHORTER DAY

Unanimous endorsement is voiced by the editorial writers of the country for the suggestion of President Harding that the time has come when the twelve hour day in the steel industry must go. "Not a single critic of the idea has developed and the President is warmly commended for his direct action method adopted to secure the change in industrial methods."

That in addition to the steel industry the President has other employees in his mind is the opinion of the Boston POST which suggests that "this request may also be accepted as indicative of the President's intentions on the order now before him for his consideration relative to putting government clerks on an eight hour day. The shorter day in many employments has proven its utility, both financially and physically, and the President is acting both wisely and friendly in advising the steel men to keep up with the procession." Because industry generally has improved, where the shorter work day is in effect, the Birmingham News is convinced that "it is therefore extremely fitting that the great manufacturers of iron and steel should gather together in one place on the advice of the President to discuss and decide upon measures whereby their industries may be readjusted so as to afford the workers more opportunity for mental and spiritual expansion and for recreation." Approval, which the President's suggestion received convinced the Washington STAR that "public attention now will be centered on this industrial wrong as it never has been centered before and the steel mill owners will find themselves spurred on by a growing volume of public sentiment. This is a use of the presidential office which is coming more and more to be recognized as containing vast possibilities for good, and it may accomplish many things which statute laws find it impossible to achieve."

"President Harding did a fine thing that is a credit to him and the country," the Duluth HERALD declares, because while "apparently past efforts to abolish the twelve hour day had struck a snag through the unwillingness of one or more than one of the migrants to have it abolished," the Springfield REPUBLICAN considers "it was a good thing to have brought them together and to have put the issue plainly to them." The statement of Judge Gary that a committee would be appointed to investigate and report is displeasing to the Chicago TRIBUNE which recalls that "the whole proposition has been under investigation for years. It is generally conceded. Why not stop it now without more ado and make the victory really worth cheering for?" Action is however, possible so soon as methods are made effective that will bring "operations so closely together that few idle periods are necessary for any group of workers," the Detroit JOURNAL explains because "whether it has always been considered a necessary evil the twelve hour work day is doomed," and the NEW YORK POST results that "the eight hour day has been found practicable in the British steel industry," as well as in a number of American mills.

The question of wages is an important factor the Newark NEWS feels certain asking whether "under the proposed eight hour program is labor, by its reduction in hours to lose one third of its wages or are employers to pay half as much again for their labor in order to keep the day's wage up? It is a good thing to have the subject under serious advisement, nationally, but it will not do to assume that it is easy of adjustment." The very fact the President was able to present the situation so that action was promised "deserves commendation," the Baltimore SUN says because "the Harding method of using sweet oil instead of threats and compulsion is not without merit in theory. If it can be made to work better than the Boston Post or the Wall Street Journal, seriously laying down the law every body will be gratified," but in this connection the Fort Wayne JOURNAL GAZETTE suggests that "the steel magnates dined by the President in the White House no doubt enjoyed the novelty and thanked God that Wilson and Roosevelt are gone."

The method of approach by means of a dinner is "thoroughly characteristic" of the President, the Detroit PIONEER PRESS thinks because "the President is most at home in the exercise of his talents and where as a rule he works most effectively." The meeting also "emphasized the overwhelming public sentiment against the twelve hour day," St. Louis POST DISPATCH insists that "this is a factor with which the steel corporations must reckon," while the Cincinnati TIMES STAR is flowing the idea to a conclusion. "It points out that 'in and when practice will resolve itself into practicability and a certain day. Any other course would mean a strike that would have the sympathy of the President of the United States without any further avowal from the White House.' In maintaining its present hour system the 'steel industry places itself out of alignment with other industries in this country and violates its high humanitarian and technical obligations.' The Minneapolis JOURNAL says because "few exceptions the eight hour day has become the standard in this country." In addition, the Chicago POST says "it is gratifying to feel that there is in the White House a man who recognizes the supreme importance of human values and who can champion them with so much tact and force."

The steel industry already has made material progress in doing away with the twelve hour day the Wheeling INTELLIGENCER points out and it explains that "the steel manufacturers have been wanting to get rid of it entirely so it is probable that for this reason, if for no other, they will work to follow the President's suggestion," while it is the opinion of the Lexington LEADER that it is "very impro-able that a committee after scientific and honest study of the facts, can come to any conclusion except that at which the President has arrived, that the shorter day should and must become effective before the great revival of trade which he sees just ahead of the country." There is no doubt in the mind of the New Bedford STANDARD that "industrial peace and prosperity in this country depend to a very great extent to the adoption, by the steel industry, of those more liberal and progressive ideas as to hours of labor which it alone of all big industries so far has resisted." It also is certain, the Reno Gazette is convinced, that "President Harding is the friend of the laboring man. He knows how to accomplish things and he goes about his work in the right way." The President and the public, the Pittsburgh PRESS says, "are warranted in feeling that very much was accomplished. The steel captains were made aware in a most impressive way of the condemnation in which the enlightened public opinion of the country holds the 12 hour day which is longer than any man should be asked to labor. The abolition of such a work day in the steel industry or any other industry where it still survives has undoubtedly been brought nearer by the President's action."

RUSSIA SEN FROM WITHIN

Paris—Writing in L'OEUVRE, Robert de Jouvenel, says:

"I asked a man who had just been in Russia, a man who had just passed six months in Moscow what struck him most in Soviet Russia."

"He replied that what seemed most extraordinary to him was the phenomenon of the country with no money, or rather where its value not only changes every day, but almost every hour. This alone seemed really new to him. The famine, also, is not a calamity which has never happened before; communism is a social experience such as has often been attempted; the Tcheka is not very different from all terrorist institutions, not even from the police under the late czar; and we have seen many countries without liberty. Moreover the Tcheka has only to do with people engaged in politics and the great business of expropriation is now finished. But the exchange upsets everybody's life; nobody knows how much his coin is worth in the pocket. The purchasing power of the money changes so quickly that the public conveyances have had to give up publishing their tariffs, even for a week ahead."

"We don't take the train said one of the inhabitants of Moscow, laughingly because we never know if the price of the tickets won't be increased after a short distance."

"So they still joke in Moscow, and I even got a good breakfast in a Moscow restaurant; it is true it cost me two hundred and thirty-seven roubles."

"The speaker continued: 'Can you imagine a country where all saving has become impossible. There are banks in Moscow, but who would think of depositing money there? The sums deposited might easily lose half their value the next day. As soon as a certain number of roubles has been got together, the one thing to do is to exchange them for some goods which will keep their value more or less, for it doesn't do to think of changing them into foreign money.'"

"It is very difficult to do any business. But foreigners may take the risk, for there is a time when the series of operation which they have contracted may end in profit; it is the moment they cross the frontier with a parcel. As to the Russians, it is difficult to see how they get on. Lenin has proposed to let the gold go to a hundred Bolsheviks for one technically skilled workman. There are still skilled workmen in Russia but they are in need of what is necessary for all work; interest. Only foreigners can really attempt anything in this Russia which possesses tremendous natural wealth."

"Russia has just entered into another phase of history. For years they have been liquidating property and now they need funds to exploit it. After having exported precious stones they grant concessions."

"The most curious thing is that they are giving them for nothing and in some cases to intermediaries whom they know will never exploit the property themselves."

"Lenin's great preoccupation is not to give this great enterprise into the hands of one single nation, either British, or American or German."

"Dr. Hugo of the German Reichstag and one of the promoters of the Russo-German treaty, was well aware of this. Returning from a journey to Russia he warned his compatriots against certain illusions."

"In spite of the Rapallo Treaty," he said, "we must not imagine that Germany will be able to solve the problem of reconstruction in Russia as long as the exchange and reparations problems have not been solved. Russian soil contains inestimable treasures for all branches of production—but these treasures are neither easy nor cheap to exploit. Great profit must not be expected immediately. Besides, Russia is in need of material, and technical skilled labor, eighty percent of the technical labor before the war came from Germany; but I have talked with many of these men and they don't seem at all inclined to resume their work under present circumstances."

"In conclusion, Russia is a country of 130 million inhabitants, with 30 million migratory pastoralists, who have migrated from the first times of civilization, and 95 millions of illiterates."

"A large part of the world therefore still remains to be colonized. Will this tremendous enterprise be undertaken by all the nations in common, or will each nation try to obtain the exclusive right of exploitation? The peace of the world depends on the answer to this question."

Seal Whisky Leak

An American bootlegger gets in touch with a Canadian distiller. He buys a carload of whiskey and has it shipped to an imaginary person in Mexico. The railroad shipment is routed across the United States, as permitted up to now by law.

While the whiskey freight-car is in an American railroad yard, it is broken into by the bootlegger. He hauls the stuff away.

Canadian distiller doesn't care. He has his money. The railroad doesn't care. Freight was paid in advance. No complaint of course from the imaginary consignee in Mexico. All around it's a beautiful arrangement.

But the national Supreme Court now rules that liquor, moving from one foreign port to another, can be seized on American territory, under the prohibition laws.

One by one, the whiskey leaks are being sealed.

PIONEERS

Born in Connecticut in 1844, Mrs. Henry P. Pollet reminisces about her marriage 50 years ago. On the wedding day, her husband had only $5 cash, but she says it was ample for paying the minister and honeymooning for a week.

You get an idea of how prices have changed when Mrs. Pollet recalls that tailors made a man's coat in those days for 25 cents. And the Pollet's living expenses were only $192.45 the first year of their marriage.

Wages, however, were correspondingly small. That's the joker.

BOOK-WORMS

Robertson Smith might have been valedictorian of his class this year at the University of Chicago. He was put out of the running because he couldn't chin himself 10 times.

Smith had all the mental record qualifications for the official class orator. But after he had chinned himself seven times his muscles went back on him.

It will amaze old time graduates to learn that an A-1 student no longer is a star unless he measures up to certain athletic standards. A good many will consider this ridiculous.

GRAIN

Russia will not be able to export grain for at least five years. That is the report of a special agent of the Department of Commerce.

With Russia out of the running until 1927, American grain growers could be reasonably sure of good foreign markets, also better prices than if a flood of grain were pouring down thru the Dardanelles.

There's many a slip, etc., however. Five years is a long time.

Should Remain on Job

Editor Post-Crescent—Mr. Rasey, principal of the high school, left Monday evening for a trip to California leaving the high school without a head for the closing week of school. To accommodate his plans graduation took place Monday evening and the seniors received diplomas indicating that they had satisfactorily completed their high school course—and many of them had not finished taking their final examinations at that time.

I have children in the high school and am very much opposed to having the principal absent himself from school for almost a week at a time—and this has happened twice this year. If a high paid man is needed for principal it seems to me that he ought to be on the job. I am also opposed to helping pay a salary amounting, I believe, to almost a hundred dollars a week to a city employ who wishes "to attend conventions which have no connection, as far as I can see, with school affairs."

Q. Why does the sun shine on the north side of buildings in the summer time in the temperate zone, when the sun never comes north of 23½ degrees latitude? E. L. H.

A. The Naval Observatory says during the time the sun's declination is north, which is from about March 21, to September 22, it rises at a point on the horizon north of east and sets at a point north of west, as seen from any part of the earth's surface, although it always crosses the meridian south of the zenith of places north of 23½ degrees north latitude. For this whole period of six months, therefore, the sun at rising and setting will shine on the north side of a building set due east and west.

Q. What is the best conductor of heat? J. F. A.

A. Metals surpass all other materials in heat conducting power, silver standing at the head of the list.

Q. Was Lafadio Hearn an American, an Irishman, or a Japanese? E. T. U.

A. Lafadio Hearn was born of an Irish father and a Greek mother in the Ionian Islands. He was educated in England and France, was a journalist in Cincinnati and New Orleans, and finally went to Japan where he became a Japanese subject with the name Yakumo Koizumi.

Q. What are steamer ducks? I. E. W.

A. This name is applied to a very large duck found in southern South America. It is called "steamerduck" because of its ability to row itself along the surface of the water at great speed. This is attributed to the fact that at maturity this bird loses its power of

THREE TIMES CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT IS DEAD

By Associated Press
Pana, Ill.—Henry E. Simpson, 82, of Pana, three times an aspirant for the presidency of the United States died Tuesday. A candidate before the Republican national convention in 1880 Mr. Simpson lost the nomination to President Garfield. He made a second attempt with the so-called Greenback party. He made no further attempts until 1912 when he organized the Peoples Christian Party and was its presidential nominee. He secured a sprinkling of votes.

SUCH PAINS AS THIS WOMAN HAD

Two Months could not turn in Bed
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Finally Restored Health

Seattle, Washington.—"I had dragging pains first and could not stand on my feet, then I had chills and fever and such pains in my right side and a hard lump there. I could not turn myself in bed and could not sleep. I was this way for over two months, trying everything any one told me, until my sister brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it regularly until all the hard pains had left me and I was able to be up and to do my work again. The hard lump left my side and I feel splendid in all ways. I know of many women it has helped."—Mrs. G. RICHARDSON, 4640 Orcas St., Seattle, Wash.

This is another case where Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought results after "trying everything any one told me" had failed. If you are suffering from pain, nervousness and are always tired; if you are low spirited and good for nothing, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Careless Shampooing
Spoils the Hair
Soap should be used very carefully. If you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and runs it. The best thing for steady use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use. Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage. You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

KAUKAUNA PLAYS MENASHA SUNDAY

Electric City Making Preparations to Entertain Huge Crowd at Game

Kaukauna — Everything is being set for the fifth ball game of the season Sunday afternoon when the local Fox River valley league team meets the strong Menasha aggregation on the home diamond. Four teams now are tied for second and third positions. The game last Tuesday was lost to Fond du Lac after a tough battle and since Fond du Lac also defeated Menasha, indications are that the Electric City is in for another win. The players are working out every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoon in order to keep in tip top shape. Menasha still is the shining light of the local squad. He garnered two hits in the Fond du Lac game and scored Kaukauna's only run. He also stole second and third bases, the only stolen bases during the game. Frederick is coming strong. The entire team is working like a clock. A week from Sunday Green Bay will play here. Box seats for the game Sunday are being sold at Mulford's on the south side and at Hilgenberg's on the north side.

MOTHER OF PROMINENT BANKER REVEALS MOST AMAZING FACTS

"I Really Believe Trutona Saved My Life," Mrs. Brinkotter Says — Gained Ten Pounds in Weight, Never Suffers After Eating Any More And Sleeps Better Than She Has For Many Years

"I really believe this great medicine Trutona saved my life." Thus, Mrs. Elizabeth Brinkotter, mother of the cashier of the State Bank of Decatur, Ill., residing at 1144 East William street, and who is known to hundreds of Decatur people as a woman of the highest honesty and integrity, paid signal tribute to the merit of Trutona, the famous tonic, recently.

"For five long years I suffered from nervousness and stomach troubles," Mrs. Brinkotter said, "instead of digesting, food soured in my stomach with the result that I suffered painful gas formations and very distressing dizzy spells. I couldn't sleep at night and I'd actually become so weak at times I'd feel like I could hardly drag through another day. I seemed to be so peevish all the time, too."

"It seemed that no one knew what was the matter with me and so finally I began using Trutona. This great medicine has done me more good than anything else I have ever tried. Trutona first regulated my bowels, then my appetite improved and I soon found that I wasn't suffering the dreadful misery after eating that I formerly did. I sleep better now than I have for years. I gained ten pounds in weight, too, and my strength increased daily. I really do believe that Trutona saved my life."

Did you ever read such a remarkable statement any time, anywhere praising ANY other proprietary preparation, as the above story from Mrs. Brinkotter? We don't believe so! It is such statements which have placed Trutona in a rank above present-day proprietary preparations. Hundreds of prominent and respected people, like Mrs. Brinkotter—many of them here in Appleton—heretofore averse to publicly recommending any medicine—have unhesitatingly endorsed Trutona, after using this famous tonic. They quickly realized that Trutona is DIFFERENT from the average medicine. And Trutona IS different. It goes straight to the seat of your troubles and REMOVES the CAUSE of nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite, anaemia, back, side and chest pains, gastritis, blood disorders and the like with amazing rapidity. And remember—Trutona costs you less than many other preparations—one dollar per bottle; three bottles for $2.75—six for five dollars. Trutona is sold and highly recommended in Appleton at SCHLINTZ BROS. Company, where hundreds of bottles of this famous tonic are being sold weekly. adv.

DELINQUENT TAX SALE POSTPONED

Publication of Delinquent List Delayed — Sale to be Held June 27

The Outagamie co. assessment tax sale which was originally set for June 13 has been postponed two weeks. In view of the large number of delinquents, it was decided to exercise the authority of postponing the day of the auction, as provided by law. Eleventh hour payments still are being made plus the penalty of 25 cents.

The number of tax delinquents this year is nearly twice that of last year. About 2,000 pieces of property will be offered at auction unless the taxes are paid before June 27. The delinquency amounts to about $9,000 in Appleton, $14,000 in Oneida and between $30,000 to $35,000 in the entire county. Louis Peterson, county treasurer, is now publishing a list of the delinquent taxpayers and the parcels of land that will be offered for sale. An opportunity will be given later to redeem the property by paying 10 per cent interest on the sale price of the certificates.

Celebration of Diamond Jubilee of College Begins Next Monday

A general invitation is being extended to friends of Lawrence college in Appleton to attend the diamond jubilee celebrations at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The jubilee program which marks the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of Lawrence in Appleton will begin with a concert by Lawrence choir at 8:20 Monday evening.

More than $1000 has been spent to put on the historical pageant which was written by Mrs. Laura Lummis Schutz. It is a story of the early development of Appleton and the Fox river valley. The presentation is the biggest thing which has ever been attempted in pageantry in Appleton.

PATROLMEN VIE WITH EACH OTHER ON COUNTY ROADS

Travelers have observed a keen competition among county road patrolmen. Each man seems to be jealous of the other and wants to have his section be the best in the county. This competition is believed to have been somewhat accelerated by the watchful eye of Julius Pfeiffer, patrol superintendent. The patrolmen's horses are also beginning to show the signs of heavy work. Most of them went on the job looking sleek and fat, but a number have already lost considerable weight. Road trucks are being put into good service. A ton and a half trucks recently hauled 20 yards of gravel in 10 hours, traveling a total of 70 miles that day.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe To Keep Her Locks Dark, Glossy Beautiful

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. adv.

For the first time the Appleton water commission is handicapped for lack of pipe in laying water mains. After the job on Lawrence st., between Mason and Douglas sts., is completed, which will be Thursday evening, the pipe laying crews will stop work. Four carloads of pipe were ordered from a firm in Birmingham, Ala., some time ago. It is said the company finds it difficult to fill its many orders.

Pictures of the various kinds of trees and their effect on the surroundings in which they are placed are a feature of the publication. A sample copy has been presented to Secretary Hugh G. "If you're content," he mumbled, "I dare say there's nothing more to be said."
She nodded easily, repeating the word, "Nothing," in a flute-like note of mirth. Hanging his head, he began wretchedly to stuff the plunder into his pockets, muttering half to himself: "What a pity! If only I could have had a bit of luck! If only we could have it off!"
"If you hurry," she reminded him, "you can catch the night train for San Francisco, you can just about make it!"
"Well..." He glanced uneasily at her, and again was conscious of the heat in his cheeks. "So it comes to this at last... goodbye!"
"Goodbye," she repeated, amiably casual.

"I dare say..." He gave a dubious chuckle. "Dare say it's stupid but well, the usual thing, you know..."
"Usual thing?" she parroted, with faintly knitted brows.
"To kiss goodbye."
"You'll miss your train!"
He developed a moment of desperately sincere emotion: "Fanny, you've been a perfect brick to me, a perfect brick. I feel like a dog, leaving you like this!"

"Oh!" she said, as one indulges a persistent child—"if you really want to kiss me, Harry, go ahead!"
Nevertheless she turned her mouth aside, his lips brushed only her powdered cheek. Then she stepped back to her mirror and with a puff made good the imperceptible damage done by the caress. The glass showed Lorraine's shadow sinking out. She heard him blunder through the living room, the slam of the screen door. And her hand fumbled, the powder-puff dropped unheeded, mist drifted across her vision, she gasped a breathless "Damn!" Tears meant a wrecked make-up.

Though there was need enough for haste if he were to carry out the plan she made for him, Lorraine dragged slowly down the walk, with a hand-dog air, the hands in his pockets fingering the price of the last sorry shreds of his self-respect. In the darkness the flesh of his face still burned with fire of shame.
Besides the car he halted and rested with a hand on the door for so long a time that the chauffeur grew inquisitive.

"Where to, Mr. Lorraine?"
"No, by God!" Lorraine blurted in to the man's astonished face, and whirling about, strode hastily back to the bungalow.
As he drew near he could hear Fanny's voice. She was at the telephone in the living-room, calling a number he didn't catch: Summerlad's no doubt.

"Hello? Is it you, dear? Fanny... First chance I've had... Please... I've been waiting to see you all day and tell you how I sympathized... Yes, any time you please, as soon as you like... No, he won't mind, he... mean, I'm all alone. Besides, we had a little talk tonight, came to an understanding. He won't be in our way after this ever again, Harry dear..."

Something amused her, peals of musical laughter. Lorraine looked down the walk. "Union Pacific Station," he cried, throwing himself into the car. "Drive like hell!"

That sunset whose reluctant waning Lorraine was presently to watch from the bungalow veranda was still a glory in the sky when Lucinda motored to Beverly Hills.

It seemed a churlish chance indeed that ordained a reception for her exclusively at the hands of a semi-intelligible Jap, who uttered assorted fragments of English to the general sense that Mister was having his foot treated at the moment but would soon be disengaged.

She put off her wrap, made herself at home, and sought but somehow failed to distill a compensating thrill from the reflection that she would ere long be called upon to make herself at home here for good and all. "Ere-long" meaning, of course, after Reno... And why not? The house was excellently planned, amply big for two no reason why. Without need move unless he really wanted to.

Curiously concerning Lynn's tastes when he did find time to read, moved Lucinda to run the straggling squad of titles. Novelized in number, in general such trash as furnishes the cinema with most of its plot material. In addition, a subscription set of De Maupassant, another of O. Henry. Well! "The Outing and Pleasant" and the Collected Verse of Rudyard Kipling, six copies of the same edition of Who's Who on the Screen, Laurence Hope's Indian Love Lyrics in an exceptionally beautiful binding.

With a chuckle Lucinda took possession of this last: Lynn would have Laurence Hope's... Evidently a gift copy. When she opened the book at its flyleaf, a slip of printed paper fluttered out. Without pausing to read the inscription, Lucinda retrieved the clipping: a half-tone from one of the motion picture monthlies, a view of the bungalow grounds, with the house in the distance, and in the foreground Lynn and a young woman arm-in-arm, laughing at the camera.

The evening had grown quite dark when a crash of the telephone startled Lucinda, and renewed contact with her surroundings. The book was in her hand. Behind her a door opened. Without moving she watched Summerlad, in a dressing-gown, hastily thrown on over dress-shirt and trousers, hobble over to the telephone and conduct one end of a short conversation of which her wits made no sense whatever. He hung up, and peered blindly round the room.

"What's the big idea, sitting alone in the dark?" At the same time he switched on wall-sockets and blinking, saw her. "Just our back," he grumbled, trying to sound as consolatory. "What do you think,

"sweetheart? Fanny says they can't come tonight. Harry's laid up, got a sick headache or something, and she doesn't think she ought to leave him. I wonder if you'd mind dining here with me alone, this once. I can't very well go out with this foot. Eh? What do you think?"

Lucinda made no sound. His eyes narrowed as he perceived the abnormal absence of color in her face, the dark dilation of her unwavering eyes. Limping, he approached.

"What's the matter, Linda? Not cross with me, are you?"

An entreating hand silenced him. All in a breath Lucinda said: "Lynn, why didn't you ever tell me you were married?"

Summerlad said "Damnation!" half under his breath and moved nearer, till another flutter of her hand stopped him. "That wise husband of yours," he exploded then, vindictively. "I suppose he's been spilling all he knows!"

"Did he know? Yes, I presume he must have. But you're mistaken. He didn't tell me. It was this."

Summerlad frowned, at a loss to identify the volume in her extended hand.

THE STAGE

Boomerang Bill

A human story of a crook with a heart is unfolded in "Boomerang Bill," a Paramount picture coming to the Appleton Theatre Tomorrow and Saturday. The picture features Lionel Barrymore and is adapted from Jack Boyle's Cosmopolitan tale.

"Boomerang Bill" is a Chicago gunman hiding in New York because of a crime he has committed in his home city. He meets a girl who wins his love and he resolves to go straight. Bill works honestly until the girl tells him that she must obtain money to send her invalid mother to the country to save her life. Bill, torn between his desire to be honest and his love for the girl holds up a bank and is captured.

He is sent to prison for a long term and the girl promises to await his release. But another man asks the girl to marry him and promises to take her and the invalid mother to the mountains. Bill insists that she marry the other man.

Here is a dramatic situation of power. How it works out is a touching and memorable picture.

Other features will be shown in connection.

Praise Tourist Camp

Four automobile parties, two from Milwaukee and two from Chicago, which camped at Alicia park Tuesday night, pronounced Appleton's tourist camp the best that had seen on their way from the Windy City, according to George Merkle, park caretaker. At none of the camp sites in other cities had they found such facilities as they had here, they said.

MRS. TALMADGE'S
AMBITION IS FOR GIRLS' HAPPINESS

Mother of Three Noted Movie Stars is Glad They Are in Pictures

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS
New York—"Suppose your daughters were just starting out now to make careers for themselves, would you want them to go into the movies?" I put this question to Mrs. Talmadge immediately after she arrived in New York from scenic-ridden Hollywood. And the mother and chum of Norma, Constance and Natalie—three names made famous on the screen replied: "Yes. For my greatest ambition for my daughters has always been for their own happiness. I know Constance and Norma are happier in pictures than they would be idle or in any other type of work, just as Natalie is happiest in her home. I should not wish things to be any different with them."

Mrs. Talmadge is soft voiced, gentle and motherly.

LIKE GOLDFISH
"Movie people," she said, "swim about in a big glass bowl with the eyes of the world upon them. And when anything happens to one fish, big or little, it becomes common property."

"It is most unfair to denounce the whole motion picture world when only a small group is involved. Hollywood is a good-sized city, made up of many types of people. To attribute to all of them the same habits and failings is as foolish as to say that all bankers are thieves because one teller absconds with the funds."

"Nothing is going to prevent girls from wanting to become screen stars as long as the profession offers such glittering hopes and chances for fortune as it does now."

GIRLS' ACID TEST
"Hollywood is the acid test of a girl's character. It can be a Babylon or a Sahara, a land of opportunity or a place of despair—it all depends on the girl."

"The stars have their fine homes, but the little extras and beginners have stuffy little rooms and no place to go when the day's work at the studio is over, unless it be to a motion picture show. And they're often sick of pictures by night."

"The serious girls, with their minds on their work, will probably fall in with the right elements and make the right sort of friends. But the pleasure-loving, frivolous creatures who believe that life owes them a good time, are very apt to drift into the wrong sets."

CONDITIONS HARD
"Right now, economic conditions are very pathetic. Many girls go out west with just enough money to get there, hoping to obtain work immediately—they've been told they are pretty and better than some of the stars and they believe it."

"A number of the studios are closed and thousands are out of work. Some of them don't know where their next dinner is coming from. And it isn't surprising that they grasp any opportunities that seem to offer a way out."

"I don't take any particular credit for my girls' successful and spotless careers, but I am very thankful that I have been able to be with them during every step and to smooth out things for them as they went along, and to provide a good home for them while they were learning the game."

HOW THEY STARTED
"Norma and Constance started in New York. I remember Norma and I discussed her career and I suggested pictures. She liked the idea and together we went to the old Vitaphone studio where she got her first job at $25 a week."

"I went with her every day and knew just how she was getting along. Constance just naturally drifted in after Norma did. She was funny and awkward at first. Natalie tried a few parts, but did not like the work at all."

"When they would get all tired out, I used to make them stay in bed for a few days. I looked after their health and their diet. I kept them from worry so they could have their minds free for their work."

"All girls need mothering. The unfortunate thing about pictures is that a girl is obliged to be away from her mother just when she needs her most."

LEARN A WORD
EVERY DAY

Today's word is DISPARAGE.
It's pronounced—dis-par-aj, with the accent on the second syllable.
It means—to depreciate, to detract from.

It comes from—the Latin prefix "dis," signifying the reversal of an action, and "par," also Latin, meaning equal.

It's used like this—"Residents of San Francisco and Los Angeles seldom miss an opportunity to disparage each, the city of the other."

REHMER SELLS HOME

Angus Rehmer has sold through the real estate agency of Labbs & Shepherd his residence at 493 Pacific street, to Otto L. Dau of Oshkosh, who will take possession within the next 30 days.

Household
Hints

STAINS ON TEETH
If fruits or things the children have been eating stain their teeth badly and you wish to remove the discoloration, rub over it with a little salt. The mouth should then be rinsed with warm water.

DON'T FILL IT
A hot water bottle should never be really filled. If it is to be put in a bed to warm have it only three-quarters full.

ORNAMENTAL
Grapefruit seeds, planted in a pretty round urn make an exceedingly attractive ornament for the dining table.

USE BRUSH
A stiff brush is useful on wash day. It removes the soil from neck bands and cuffs with less wear than rubbing does.

PREVENT RUSTING
Put a small box of unslacked lime inside the piano case if your house is damp. This takes the moisture and thus prevents the strings from rusting.

Adventures Of
The Twins

The Mountain's Advice
The rubber mountain went on his story:

"Yes, I ought to be called plum pudding mountain because that's what I'm made of. The pastry man used to have his shop near here, and when he made plum puddings that weren't good he dumped 'em on this spot."

"After awhile they grew together and then I became me. I really am rubber now, but don't talk to me of indigestion. I've got all the indigestion I saved other people who didn't eat me."

"Well," said Nick, "Nancy and I have our Green Shoes, so we'll just wish ourselves down on the other side. We'll not walk on you any more."

"Oh, no, you can't," replied the mountain quickly. "Not here. Whoever would get to the Kingdom of Diddyevers must say he has walked on the Seven Mountains, and whoever would get to the Kingdom of Korkis must tell the gate-keeper that he has walked through the Seven Valleys. I tell you what I'll do. I'll hold my breath until you get down on the other side. But before you go I'll give you a word of warning about the next mountain. It is made of glass, and for every step up you will slide two steps down. The only way you can get over is to go up backwards."

"First jump up backwards as far as you can, after that every step you take will carry you two steps in the other direction. The mountain won't know the difference."

"Thank you," said Nancy. "Then we'd better be going."

The mountain held his breath and the Twins scrambled up to his top and down the other side as fast as they could go. But even after they had put a long distance between them and the ticklish old mountain they could hear him ha, haing, and ho, hoing, and heaving and shaking so hard the whole earth trembled.

OUR FIRST YEAR

Chapter 48 — Midnight Argument
By a Dried

A terrible shock, one of a practical and disagreeable nature, awaited us after that rehearsal. Those dishes!

To be confronted by kitchen confusion after a romantic night in Noreland! To have to wash dishes while planning to keep Bonny from eloping! To let Jack, for the twentieth time, take over my part of the business of home-making.

"This night had been a queer mixture of the prosaic and the esthetic! But how could I have cleared up this kitchen before I went to rehearsal?" "You're so tired, Peggie!" You go to bed. Let me clear up the kitchen," Jack coaxed.

But I was in a frame of mind to object to any proposition my husband might make.

"I'll do those dishes now! If they stand we'll have roaches! But they're not your work. I'll do them alone."

Jack calmly continued to rinse the plates under the hot water faucet.

"All right! Help if you want to. Even if it is midnight, they've got to be done." I went on. "There's another reason. You'll have to get your own breakfast in the morning, Jack."

"Why—what did you say?" Jack was so astonished that he dropped his dish towel. It occurred to me that he never had got his breakfast in his life.

"I'm going to the station at 7 in the morning," I announced as casually as if I were accustomed to meet an early train daily.

"Why—what for Peggie?"

"I'd rather not tell you, Jack. It's not my secret!"

Now there was no reason on earth why I should not explain everything to Jack. But I did not.

I excused myself by saying that the rehearsal had been too much for me and washing dishes at midnight irritating. But in my heart I knew that the reason I refused to say where I was going alone early in the morning was Mrs. Herrod's letter!

In that little matter my husband was living up to our pre-nuptial agreement. He assumed I had no right to know that another woman was writing to him regularly. Well then, if I had business at an early morning train I could attend to it without his assistance.

But the next morning when I crawled out of bed and left poor dear Jack to make his own coffee, something seemed to be very much wrong with life.

"It's raining, Peggie! Better let me do your errand for you," Jack suggested. Or let me go along and carry your umbrella—"

"Impossible, Jack! It's not my affair. I told you that."

I would not be reasonable, nevertheless I adored Jack because he wanted to take care of me. To be taken care of by Jack was fast becoming the most precious part of matrimony.

Onions A Remedy

If you are spending sleepless nights this spring try the simple and homely remedy of eating onions!

Make an onion sandwich to eat just before going to bed. The combination of minerals cures the nerves and induces sleep.

Always prepare onions under water. No odor clings to the hands.

ONION SANDWICH
Slice onions very thin into salt water to cover. Let stand for an hour. Drain and dry between towels. Mince.

Springle with a few drops of lemon juice and put between thin slices of white bread and butter.

Little new onions should be cleaned and allowed to stand in cold water for an hour before mincing. Then mince right on bread and sprinkle lightly with salt.

ONION SALAD
Large sweet onions, minced parsley, pepper and salt, oil and vinegar.

Peel onions, cover with cold water and bring to the boiling point. Drain. Let stand in cold water for five or six hours. Change water frequently. Drain and dry between towels.

Slice very thin and arrange on a bed of lettuce, season with salt and pepper and a little vinegar and pour over a liberal amount of oil. Sprinkle with minced parsley and serve.

SPRING ONION SALAD
Two four apples, 1 bunch new onions, mayonnaise dressing, 4 stuffed olives, hearts of lettuce.

Pare and cut apples into dice. If tart apples are not to be had let the diced fruit stand in lemon juice to cover for an hour. Mix apples and onions well and add enough mayonnaise to make moist, creamy mixture. Arrange on hearts of lettuce and garnish with the stuffed olives cut in neat slices.

Did you ever try this? It's not a company dish but the man of the family will like it after a strenuous day in the open.

Shred leaf lettuce. Cut tops of new onions in inch lengths. There should be half as much onion as lettuce. Mix well, put in the spider ham was fried in. Cover closely and cook over slow fire for 10 minutes. Remove cover and add two tablespoons of vinegar. Serve at once as a vegetable.

CREAMED NEW ONIONS
New onions, 4 squares of toast 2 tablespoons grated cheese, ¼ cup of cream, butter, salt and pepper.

Allow four or five onions for each person. Use all the white part. Peel and boil in salted water till tender. Butter toast, sprinkle with a little grated cheese and add onions. Season with salt and pepper and sprinkle with more cheese.

Put in hot oven just long enough to melt cheese. Scald cream in double boiler and pour three tablespoons over each portion. Serve at once.

Canton, China.—Dr. Charles K. Edmunds, President of the Canton Christian College, is millman to 400,000,000 people.

He's trying to teach the whole Chinese nation to drink milk and eat milk products.

That's a new thing for China. Dairy cattle are unknown here. A Chinese baby, when weaned goes on a rice diet. If the mother dies, milk of the sow, mare or goat sustains it.

Edmunds has established a dairy at the college here. The provincial government is paying a subsidy to aid the spread of the industry.

HERZOG SIGNS THREE NEW PLAYERS FOR HIS TEAM

SHOTT GIVEN HIS RELEASE FROM FORDS

New Manager of Local Club is Making Every Effort to Build Up Squad

Manager Jack Herzog will put a strong team on Grand park against Fond du Lac next Sunday, judging by the changes already made in the Appleton line up. Several new men will appear with the local team in the next game.

Breuninger, an outfielder formerly with Milwaukee Brewers, comes to the Brantons with a reputation as a good fielder and a heavy hitter. Goodman, coming from the Red Sox with a reputation for brilliant base work, will play second base. Karst, an infielder formerly with the Two Rivers club of Lake Shore League, has also been signed. He batted .315 last year. Fritz, who played on first base for the Brantons at Green Bay last Sunday, probably will be behind the bat.

Shott and Gardner have been released. The locals will no doubt be strengthened by a new man in place of Shott who failed the team in several tight places this season.

Public opinion is favoring the Brantons on the protest of last Sunday's Green Bay game. Several of Green Bay's best informed fans in discussing the game. Memorial day is quoted as saying that the decision on the protest should be in Appleton's favor. It is understood that Kaukauna is also with Herzog's outfit in the matter.

The Brantons have been playing against hard luck but fans are questioning the ability of some of the other teams in the league. Pitches who are in the major league class to play one game.

Two Teams Are Tied For Lead In County League; Big Crowds See Games

Interesting Games are Scheduled for Next Sunday—Freedom and Kimberly Mix in Feature Battle.

HOW THEY STAND

	W.	L.	Pct.
Hortonville	3	0	1.000
Kimberly	3	0	1.000
Freedom	2	1	.667
Interlakes	1	2	.333
Black Creek	0	3	.000
Dale	0	3	.000

SUNDAY'S GAMES
Freedom at Kimberly.
Black Creek at Hortonville.
Interlakes at Dale.

A few changes were made in standings of teams in the Outagamie County Baseball league last Sunday and it would not be surprising if next Sunday saw still more upsets. The powerful Freedom team will take on Kimberly on the latter's home grounds in what should be the feature game of the day. Again, the wonderful Kimberly hurler, had his string of scoreless innings spoiled by errors behind him last Sunday when Dale scored two runs on his teammate's errors. Freedom players have been practicing hard of late and expect to get to the mill man next Sunday. Freedom hit the Hortonville pitcher hard last Sunday but were unable to hold the village sluggers and the latter won.

Hortonville and Black Creek mix at Hortonville. The latter team has still to lose its first game while Black Creek has still to win. Rivalry between the teams is said to be close and a hard battle is expected. The Interlakes and Dale will battle on the latter's home diamond. Dale is bolstering up her team to give the Pulp mill men a stiff fight. Dale showed lots of strength in the game with Kimberly Sunday and probably would have won if Pezan had not been so effective.

Large crowds saw all the games last Sunday, indicating considerable interest in the valley loop. This interest is expected to grow with every game.

HEATH RELEASED FROM PAIRS TEAM

Spencer Heath has been released from the pitching staff of the Menasha team after his poor showing in the Green Bay game. The pitcher for the "Pairs" has been going bad for some time due to his injured arm. Manager Harry Sylvester has not announced the selection of a pitcher to take his place as yet. First baseman Herzog, son of Manager Jack Herzog of the Appleton team, has also left the Menasha club to play independent ball. Sylvester will bolster up his aggregation for the Kaukauna game with several new men.

GAME IS CALLED IN FIFTH INNING BECAUSE OF RAIN

The game of baseball between teams representing St. Aloysius society and Bohm & Jones on the fourth ward diamond Tuesday afternoon was called in the fifth inning because of rain. The score at that time was 7 to 3 in favor of St. Aloysius society. The next game between the two teams will be played Sunday, June 11.

MERKLE FINDS FAIR ROADS TO MILWAUKEE

George Merkle, Appleton deputy health officer, has returned from an automobile trip to Milwaukee where he visited his son-in-law, Thomas Lathrop, who is ill in Resthaven hospital. He drove down on state trunk highway No. 57 and 17 and returned in order to satisfy himself as to the reports about the detours on both highways. He found that the detour between Slinger and Lomira is not as bad as reported, while the inksome detour south of Oshkosh is but a short one. A strip of new gravel of considerable distance was encountered on the Lake shore trip.

Greater Than Monkey Glands For Restoring Youth

Greatly overworked is the saying that a man is as old as he feels, but it's a positive fact that a person in perfect health, alive with energy, vitality, and enthusiasm, seems years younger than the number of his birthdays would indicate. And when you lack this vibrant health and energy there is undoubtedly some reason for it—tired, worn-out nerves, indigestion, constipation, frequent headaches, or some other chronic disorder. The greatest relief for this condition is the famous tonic known as Korbeline. This agreeable tonic is composed of roots and herbs selected for their distinctive medicinal values, and is compounded with scientific skill and knowledge. One or two table-spoonfuls before each meal will give quick relief from constipation, indigestion, loss of appetite, and other stomach disorders, and you will be amazed to find in how short a time you have regained perfect health and strength. Feel Weak, Tired, "All Played Out?"

Does the least exertion tire you out? Do you feel "blue" and worried, suffer dragging backache, headaches and dizziness? Too many women blame so-called "female trouble" for this unhappy state instead of weak kidneys, which so often are the cause. You must act quickly to prevent more serious trouble. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands of weak, tired women. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A Case in Appleton

Mrs. Anna Brockhaus, 544 Bateman-st., says: "I had awful pains over my hips and in the small of my back. My kidneys didn't act right and I had headaches and dizzy spells. I felt tired and worn out and my whole system was run down. I used Doan's Kidney Pills from Voigt's Drug Store, and they relieved the trouble."

Will Move Soon
Car & Hanson, who have leased the store building to be vacated soon by K. F. Keller & Sons expect to be occupying their new quarters within the next ten days. With the exception of a new lighting system very few changes will be made to the building.

COMPLAIN AGAINST SIGNS AT GREEN BAY

Several complaints have been registered by the players of the Valley league teams against the signs painted on the fences back of right and left field at Hagermeister park, Green Bay. The background of many colors presented by the signs make it extremely difficult for the men at bat to see the ball as it comes toward the plate from the pitcher. The painting of such signs is against big league rules which say that all fences must be painted green.

You can't make FINE CIGARS unless you command a supply of FINE TOBACCOS

ALL the filler tobaccos used in the Harvester cigar come from Cuba, whose sun and soil, rains and mists produce the aromatic flavors without which no cigar can be called "fine".

But to procure the lots of tobacco, after you have selected them bale by bale, calls for buying power, pure and simple. That means, ability to buy in large volume, backed by the cash in hand.

The outstanding reason why Harvester cigar has built such an impressive success in so few years is—tobacco.

Its makers—the Consolidated Cigar Corporation—have every advantage of buying experience and buying power. They command the best the crops yield. Second place is not for them.

Harvester is a fine cigar because it is made of fine tobaccos.

Claire Ryan, Student In High School, Wins Patriotic Essay Medal

Appleton High School Girl is Honored on Strength of Splendid Essay on Law and Order as Foundation of Good Government.

The medal for the best essay on a patriotic subject which is presented annually to the high school students by the National Society of Colonial Daughters was given to Miss Claire Ryan, daughter of Attorney and Mrs. T. H. Ryan at the class day exercises here Wednesday afternoon. Miss Ryan's essay was one of the 64 submitted by the senior class and of the 352 submitted from Appleton high schools are the only ones in the state which have been asked to take part in the contest.

Miss Ryan's essay on "Law and Order, the foundation of All Good Government," is given below. The medal given her is bronze. In awarding of the prize the year of the student in school is taken into consideration. Miss Geneva Blumichen was awarded the medal last year.

The prize winning essay follows: "By government I mean the form or system of administration by which a community is controlled. The aim of government is to protect persons the rights of property and contract, to maintain order, good health, and peace, and to develop the minds and morals of the people. In ancient times governments endeavored to control all branches of economic activities, paying little attention to health, comfort, morals, and development of individuals. They were paternalistic and the people had only the right as the ruler saw fit to give them. In 1776 Adam Smith in his "Wealth of Nations" propounded and promulgated a new theory of government namely the Laissez-faire; that is, that government should have as little to do with economic matters as possible, leaving things free to take their course.

"A perusal of history discloses the fact that there have been and now are three classes of government, namely monarchy, aristocracy, and democracy. History also discloses the fact that the people have been well and poorly governed under each. Under the late Czar the people were crushed in slavery while on the other hand under Peter the Great the people made great forward strides. The rights of people under the German feudal lords were few, the people having only such liberty and protection as the feudal lords chose to give them while Wilhelm Hohenzollern III and his aristocratic advisors placed the German people on the highest plain of civilization. The citizens of the Mexican Republic of today are ignorant and downtrodden while the citizens of the United States are lords of all they survey. It therefore follows that the form of government is not responsible for the kind of government. The inquiry is what is necessary to have good government?

"History reveals that two elements are necessary for good government, namely, the progress of society and the progress of the individuals. To have good government these two must concur. The exterior condition of man must be improved and at the same time his intellectual and moral nature developed. Any government which gives to the individuals and society the best opportunity to develop the mind, comforts and faculties of man and at the same time improve and advance the social system is a good government. It follows from this that the individuals must have liberty of action and an opportunity to develop their minds and morals.

"Each individual in society requires food, clothing and shelter for his comforts and physical development. To require these he needs resources and an opportunity to labor to produce things. So that it may not be necessary to labor longer each day than is good for his physical being, it is necessary that his mind should be developed so as to be able to devise tools and machinery for use in producing the things needed, thus saving him leisure for recreation and self improvement. Inasmuch as the satisfying of the physical wants is not sufficient for a human being and as he has an aim in life which he strives to attain, his welfare necessitates leisure and an opportunity for mental and moral development. Without law to secure to the individual the results of his labor, the strongest and most cunning person would take what he did not produce, which did not belong to him. Without a right arrangement for work, recreation and rest there can be no peace and harmony. Therefore, law and order are the foundation of all good government.

Having demonstrated that law and order are necessary for good government, the aim of each citizen should be to uphold the law and the officials who are sworn to enforce and sell in the country we have a democracy in which the powers of administration are exercised by representative institutions. The people make their own laws. The theory of a democracy or representative government is that the majority is entitled to rule. The majority has a right to enact such
